Duncan McRae, 50, Dies From Bullet Wound Thursday

Prescott Lawyer Succumbs in St. Louis Hospital Thursday p. m.

FOUND SHOT SUNDAY

Relatives at the Bedside—No Immediate Funeral Announcements

ST. LOUIS.—(AP)—Duncan McRae, son of former Governor Thomas C. McRae of Arkansas, died Thursday afternoon in a hospital here from a gunshot wound in the head suffered at his home in Prescott, Ark., Sunday.

Taken to St. Louis Monday
The 50-year-old Prescott lawyer was rushed to St. Louis Monday morning on a special train for an emergency operation which was performed Monday night.

St. Louis surgeons, in later reports, said that he had stood the operation as well as could be expected and gave him a fair chance to recover.

His brother, Thomas C. McRae, Jr., well known Prescott banker, accompanied him to St. Louis on the special train. Other relatives followed and have been at his bedside.

Three Leading in Republican Race

Borah, Landon and Knox in Fight for Presidential Nomination

WASHINGTON.—The fight for the Republican nomination for president is crystallizing as a contest of this trio of aspirants:
Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas.
Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.
Frank Knox of Illinois.

In the office are Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, expected to have the support of the Iowa delegation and of scattering delegates elsewhere, and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, who is maintaining a strictly "dark horse" position but will have the Michigan delegation behind him if he gets into the race.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

Mrs. Long Helped "Launch" Huey; Now She Succeeds Him

With a Baby on Her Lap, Mrs. Huey P. Long Prepared and Folded Campaign Circulars That Started Late Husband on His Career

By RALPH WHEATLEY
NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—Mrs. Huey P. Long goes to the United States senate as successor to her spectacular husband, well grounded in the machinations of politics.

From early married life and until the last few years of his career, she fought for his advancement from behind the scenes. It was she, with a baby on her lap, who prepared and folded for mailing the campaign circulars that launched her husband in politics.

He sought and followed her advice as he prepared the groundwork that brought him to the political dictatorship of Louisiana. But in the last years of Huey Long's life, he became a little too temperamental with his politics for her and she played small part in his public life.

Public Forum Is Interesting Affair

Ralph Speer and Mrs. Scott Wood Lead Discussion at City Hall

Hope's first Forum held Wednesday night at Hope city hall was well attended and proved to be a very interesting meeting. Ralph E. Speer, who came to Arkansas from the American Public Welfare Clearing House, used for his subject "How Can the Best Type of Citizen be Induced to Run for Office?"

In his talk he gave illustrations of the city management of various municipalities which have placed merit above party partisanship which resulted in the saving of large sums of money for the tax payers.

He gave an instance of a ballot used in the state of California during one election year which was crowded with candidates whom the people had no way of determining the qualifications of those who presented themselves for office.

This was used as an illustration for the need of a short ballot where the constituents could know what the qualifications of the individuals were. "Too often," he said, "the appointive office of the elective head is given for the patronage which the elected officer receives and this results in the right man often times being left out."

The appointive head should hold office because he is qualified for that position.

In the round table discussion after the address there was suggestions offered by various ones present as to the standards of an office holder—honesty, ability and common sense were agreed upon by those participating in the Forum as being the fundamentals for an office seeker.

Mrs. Scott Wood, President Arkansas Association of Parent-Teacher Association, informed the Forum that Little Rock was being considered as one of the 10 centers in the United States for permanent Forum organization which, if selected, will bring into that center $32,000 from the WPA in a special grant of $320,000 by the federal government to the United States Commissioner of Education, J. W. Studebaker.

The local Forum adopted a resolution asking that this be granted to Arkansas in hopes that other centers will become interested.

The next Forum will be held in the month of March.

Action Completed by Congress on 3 AAA Control Laws

Repeal Now Opens Way for Debate on New Farm Program

SMITH OFFERS PLAN

New Bill to Be "Great Improvement" Over Bankhead Act

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Congress Thursday completed the repeal of the three AAA auxiliaries of the Bankhead cotton, Smith Kean tobacco and potato control acts with the senate's acceptance of a minor house amendment.

The bill now goes to the White House.

The senate voted repeal of the three acts Tuesday, the house Wednesday, but added a brief amendment which cancelled taxes assessed but not yet collected under the compulsory cotton control law.

The senate concurred in this change Thursday.

The enacting of these three parts of the AAA acts paves the way for debate on the revised AAA replacement bill.

AAA Substitute Bill

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Farm-aid patchwork Wednesday brought a new AAA-substitute bill in the senate, an inconclusive White House conference, and house repeal—amid political fireworks of three AAA-auxiliary laws.

The senate agriculture committee agreed unanimously late in the day to a new farm measure which Chairman Smith (D-SC) said he would offer Thursday, when immediate floor consideration of new farm legislation is expected.

It would permit states by legislative act to qualify at once for a part in the proposed permanent federal-state co-operative plan of soil conservation.

Incorporating new measuring-rods for temporary two-year federal subsidies to farms, and permitting administration by state agencies, Smith called it a "great improvement" over the Bankhead bill originally reported to the senate.

Cabinet members and other farm and fiscal aides departed tight-lipped from their conference with President Roosevelt except for the observation of raising $500,000,000 to finance the new farm program was "still in the conversational stage."

The house voted 350 to 10 to repeal the Bankhead cotton control, the Kean-Smith tobacco, and the potato control acts.

Revenue Agent Ed Van Sickle said Thursday that 1,705 automobile license receipts were issued to Hempstead county car owners before the penalty started Wednesday.

Mr. Van Sickle said this figure was slightly less than the number issued last year.

Starting Wednesday morning a penalty of $3 was being assessed on delinquent purchasers. Thereafter additional penalties will be assessed until the total penalty reaches the cost of the license.

Murder--a Stabilized Industry

Copyright 1936, A. H. Washburn; reproduction, either wholly or in part, forbidden without written permission of the copyright owner.

PROHIBITION, a theory that adult morality could be improved by force, was half a generation ago enacted into federal law on the representation that it would increase public safety.

The two greatest factors affecting the public safety are crime and transportation.

People get murdered in this country of ours—we want to know how many, how the record compares with that of the other English-speaking nations, and whether our record improved or grew worse during the prohibition era.

People get killed on the public highways of America. We want to know how prohibition affected that record also.

I will first give you my authorities.

The figures on the American murder rate are by Frederick L. Hoffman, famed consultant statistician, and were published exclusively by the Spectator, magazine of all the American and Canadian life insurance companies, June 20, 1935.

Furthermore, I have used with Mr. Hoffman's figures those of the federal Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce.

The figures for highway fatalities are by the Bureau of the Census and the National Safety Council. The Bureau of the Census figures appear in my copy of the World Almanac. The figures of the National Safety Council were transmitted on the wires of the Associated Press last month and were published in various dispatches in this newspaper.

THE American murder rate in 1912, a saloon year, was 6.6 per 100,000 population. In 1913 it rose to 7.2, and again in 1914 to 7.4—but in 1915 dropped back to 7.0. In 1916 it was 7.1, and in 1917, the year America entered the war, 7.7, a new peak. In 1918, perhaps because so many men were overseas, murders fell off, the rate dropping to 6.8—but in 1919, the last of the old saloon years, it was back up again, 7.5—against 6.6 for 1912, a net increase of .9 per 100,000 population in the eight final saloon years.

Prohibition, in 1920, opened with a slight drop in the murder rate, 7.1—but in 1921 the rate jumped to an all-time high, 8.5. In the prohibition years to follow, the rate stabilized around the new high, and then continued a steady upward climb. In 1922 the rate was 8.3; in 1923 it was 8.1; in 1924 the figure was 8.4—and in 1925 the rate hit another new peak, 8.6. It increased further in 1926, to 8.8, and held at that figure for 1927 and 1928. In 1929 it dropped to 8.5—but in 1930 it leaped to still another all-time record, 9.0. The murder rate advanced again in 1931, to 9.3. In 1932 it was 9.2, closing the last full year of prohibition. The upward climb, apparent all through both the saloon and the prohibition eras, resumed its cycle in 1933, which saw prohibition repealed. The rate that year showed another new high, 9.6.

Now let us recapitulate and see what we have.

In the eight final years of the saloon, from 1912 to 1919 inclusive, the murder rate advanced from 6.6 per 100,000 to 7.5—a net increase of .9.

In the 13 years of federal prohibition, from 1920 to 1932 inclusive, the murder rate advanced from 7.1 to 9.2—a net increase of 2.1, MORE THAN TWICE AS GREAT AS THE OLD SALOON RECORD!

NO matter how you figure it you get a terrible result. The average for the eight saloon years was 7.17 per 100,000 population.

The average for the 13 prohibition years was 8.57—an increase in the homicide rate of 19.6%.

The figures show that prohibition doesn't matter—but that something else does matter, America's growing lawlessness, in a nation already the most lawless of civilized countries.

It is our flaunting of the most fundamental truths, our disobedience to the most ordinary rules of human conduct and decency, that causes us to fail to devise an alcoholic control system.

And by the crazy logic that some people employ, failure to control is made an argument for prohibition!

WE HAVE GOT TO CONTROL!
Canada has government liquor dispensaries, and the murder rate for her 14 largest cities in 1933 was 1.5 per 100,000 population. The rate for that same year in the 180 largest American cities was 10.1—and each year and every year, regardless of the law, and no matter what statistics you use or how you figure them OUR COUNTRY'S MURDER RATE IS TEN TIMES AS GREAT AS CANADA'S!

England and Wales have open saloons. All the other English-speaking people, and

50 Deaths Reported From Latest Cold Wave in the North

NEW FLOOD THREATS

Bitter Weather Halts Train Service—Schools Are Closed

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Winter's record cold wave again touched Arkansas Thursday, snow blanketing eastern and southern portions of the state.

The weather bureau predicted more snow for Thursday night.

McGehee, in southwest Arkansas, reported its fourth snow of the winter, a white blanket covering frozen ground within an hour after falling.

McGehee was covered with snow at 7:15 a. m. Thursday.

Paragould, in northeast Arkansas, had a white blanket of snow at 9:30 a. m. Thursday.

Fourth Snow Here

Hempstead county was visited Thursday with the fourth snow of the winter.

The weather forecast for this area Thursday night and Friday, was sleet and rain.

Death Report False

A report circulated about Hope Wednesday that a woman and two children froze to death in a box-car near Fulton proved to be false.

Cornett J. H. Weaver said Thursday that he had investigated the report and found it to be "only rumor."

50 Fatalities Reported

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Sub-zero cold stabbed with winds from the north-northwest Wednesday causing approximately fifty fatalities from the Rockies to the Atlantic coast.

It scored a 48 below mark at Watford, Minn., near the Canadian border, crippled highway and rail transportation in a half dozen midwestern states; knocked forty degrees from thermometer readings generally, and swept into the east in full force Wednesday night.

The thirty-seven year old record was tied at Minneapolis where the mercury sagged down to 22 below at 8 a. m. to register under zero for the nineteenth consecutive day.

Schools were closed in many communities. Fears for dwindling coal piles increased as weathermen indicated that the Mackenzie basin border frigidly would probably continue through Friday—perhaps longer.

Southern floods were congealed in the cold which blanketed the country except for parts of the extreme northwest, west, and southern portions. Suffering of flood victims mounted. Many trains were cancelled, halted or delayed in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, and Wisconsin.

Extreme readings all minus zero included: Hallock, Minn., 44; Grand Forks, N. D., 41; Watertown, S. D., 30; Milwaukee, 16; Iron Mountain, Mich., 33; Marshalltown, Iowa, 32; Chicago, 13.

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

When your baby fails to gain weight, the malnutrition indicated may be due to insufficient amounts of food, or to inability of his body to absorb food. Remember that the body must have materials for energy output and for growth, and that it will burn up its own tissues if it does not get enough food.

This failure of nutrition may go on to a point where it is impossible for a baby to survive. Moreover, the baby that is insufficiently or inadequately nourished is likely to develop various infections, to which, in a state of malnutrition, it will readily succumb.

Failure to gain weight is, therefore, a most serious condition. Doctors estimate that from one-fourth to one-third of all the children in the United States today are undernourished.

Children who are overactive because of irritable nervous systems are likely to be undernourished. Many of them hurry to get out to play so much that they become exhausted, and do not care for food.

Obviously, the way to overcome malnutrition is to give your child more food, but you can also benefit him a great deal by choosing and emphasizing the right kind of food. The food selected should include the right amount of carbohydrates and plenty of vitamins.

It is wise also to take the necessary steps to correct the irritability of your child's nervous system and to control his tendency toward too much play.

Today's Health Question
Q.—There is a system of diet in which, at given meals, differently constituted foods are grouped; that is, at one meal proteins only are eaten, and at another meal starches are eaten. Can you give me any information on this diet?

A.—The system of diet mentioned is the one known as the "fad" being promulgated to capitalize on the modern interest which intelligent people take concerning their diet.

There is no basis for the theory that foods need to be grouped at given meals according to their composition. There is no evidence that at one meal only proteins and at another only starches should be eaten.

As a matter of fact, so many common everyday foodstuffs contain both proteins and starches that to follow such a diet system, even if it were desirable.

Make certain, also, that he does not eat between meals. A piece of candy or a glass of milk, taken just before a meal, will kill the appetite for food. Sometimes undernourished children will eat better if they get more sleep.

The irritable and restless child should stay in bed until at least 10 o'clock in the morning and take a long nap in the afternoon.

This serves the double purpose of leaving the child free for fuel to use in supplying energy and of quieting the nervous system.

It is particularly important to remove any infections that are disturbing and destroying the body of the child.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

If you would like to have a look at a truly radical conception of human society, you would do well to read "Out of the Night," by H. J. Muller. Professor Muller, a zoologist of the University of Texas, seems to begin where today's extreme left wing leaves off. His picture of man's future may startle you, but it will at least be interesting and it may set you thinking.

Man, says Professor Muller, has it in his power to shape his own destiny as he sees fit. He knows enough of the evolutionary process, and of the influence of heredity on the organism's development, to exercise this power whenever he crosses.

His weapon, continues Professor Muller, is eugenics. But Professor Muller is not talking of eugenics in the ordinary sense—sterilization of idiots and criminals, possession of a doctor's certificate by prospective brides and bridegrooms, and so on. His idea of eugenics compares with the current idea as sulphuric acid compares to vinegar.

Professor Muller has in mind a nothing less than a human breeding process as carefully planned and controlled as the work of a sculptor. He suggests propagation by artificial insemination, with our greatest men becoming the fathers of hundreds, even thousands, of children. Thus, he says, the race can at last realize its own potentialities.

None of this, Professor Muller maintains, could be done in our present society. We must, therefore, he says, change society first of all and establish it on a non-profit, equalitarian basis. Then we shall be ready to start building for the future.

Published by Vanguard, this book sells for $1.50.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

We dress our children more sensibly every year, it seems to me. The little snow-suits and ski-ing costumes are so comfortable and protective. Goggles, necessary to supplement the low shoe, are indispensable to the outfit, and together the entire ensemble is admirable for exercise and warmth.

But with due apologies to those who design and make clothes for the wee folk, I have a suggestion to offer. Why not keep an eye on the facility of adjustment, make it easier for the child to slip into his togs and save mother's time too? Getting Henry ready to go out for his airing is often a bout that leaves the child peevish and mother exhausted.

For instance, why are not inflexible materials buttoned down the front instead of, too-often, the pull-over type?

Dressed, But Only Temporarily
I watched a mother recently dress her small son for the street. I thought the child pretty tough to stand for the punishment of getting ready. He looked lovely when finished and as comfortable as an Eskimo in a bear skin. But mother was ready to lie down and so was I, watching.

In a few minutes he was back. His leggings were slipping down. The rubber around his waist did not hold them up. She put in a safety pin or two. "It will wear his suit," she said, "but it's the best I can do."

"Put on some buttons and get him suspenders," I suggested. Which no doubt she has done.

As it happened in this case, the lady was, herself, partly to blame. The rigid snow-suit that nearly took off Henry's scalp, as she pulled it into place, was her choice because she liked that particular piece of plaid. She could have gotten another style, one that zipped shut or one that buttoned; but they were not so becoming to Henry as this one.

Purchases Are Guide to Supply
She could have bought a one-piece suit for the little fellow, and there would have been no difficulty about the pants. When the power-to-be find mothers going in for the comfortable and practical they will, no doubt, demand always effects the "kind" of supply.

When buying clothes or anything else for little children, the mother should keep two things in mind. "Are they easy to get on?" Can Henry and Mary learn to manage for themselves? Everything from crown to sole should be easy to don, to wear and to take off.

Be sure that the goggles snap easily and do not press into tender ankles, that harsh wool does not chafe tender necks and chins (if it does, sew a piece of silk inside). Avoid tight caps. They should fit well but not leave a mark.

Glorifying Yourself

By Alicia Hart

"The one thing the greatest number of women want is to stay young," says Elaine Sterne Carrington, magazine writer who, during the past 20 years, has received thousands of letters from women all over the country.

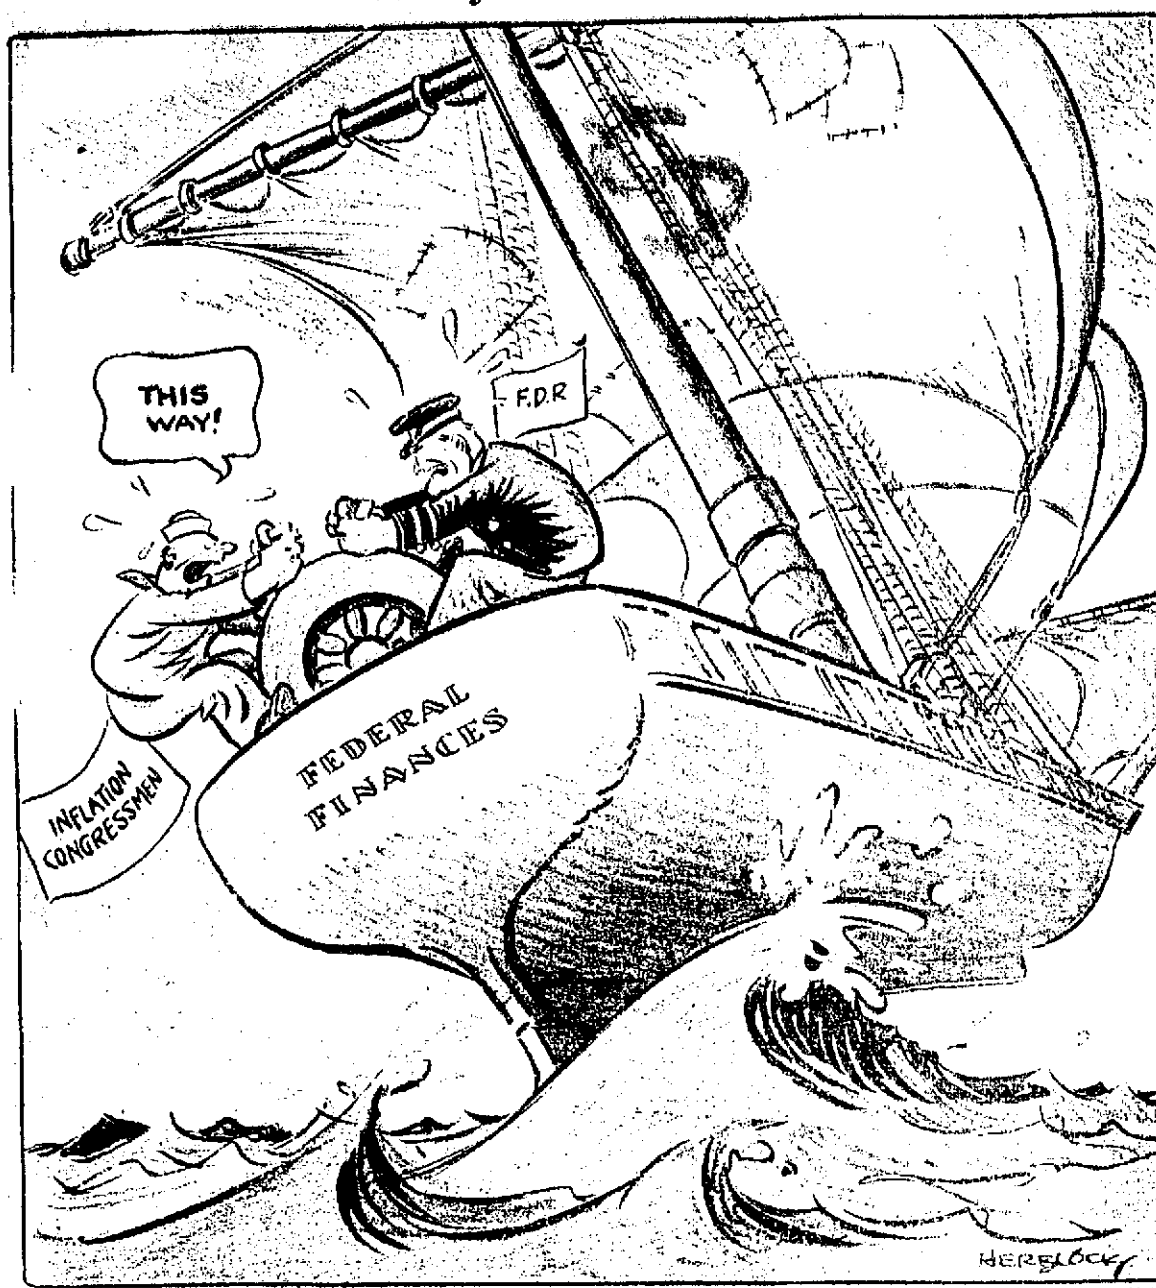

Using her fan mail as a guide, Mrs. Carrington has compiled a list of the ten major wants of women. She tops it with "forever young" and ends it with "financial security." Seems like the feminine sex cares more about its looks and charm than about money. (Cynics please note.)

Second on the list of female wants is "to keep my romance undimmed." The third great yearning deals with woman's desire to attain beauty or retain it if she already has it, and the fourth wish is for health.

Naturally, I think that each one of us should desire good health above all else. If you know enough of the evolutionary process, and of the influence of heredity on the organism's development, to exercise this power whenever he crosses.

His weapon, continues Professor Muller, is eugenics. But Professor Muller is not talking of eugenics in the ordinary sense—sterilization of idiots and criminals, possession of a doctor's certificate by prospective brides and bridegrooms, and so on. His idea of eugenics compares with the current idea as sulphuric acid compares to vinegar.

Mutiny On the Bounties

fitness makes for creamy, smooth skin, shining hair and sparkling eyes. Even the next big want (to be charming) which Mrs. Carrington places fifth on her list must depend on the fourth (health) for fulfillment. The healthy, energetic person generally radiates more charm than one who is listless and tired all the time. Do pay some attention to proper diet and exercise, and do try to get adequate sleep and rest.

The Strange Case of Julia Craig

by Nard Jones Copyright NEA 1936

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JULIA CRAIG, secretary to GEORGE WOODFORD, lawyer, is ambitious to become a night club singer. Because of this, she quarrels with PETER KEITH, young lawyer who is in love with her. Julia shares an apartment with AMY SANDERS. Woodford gives a yacht party and asks Julia to come as a singer. Others in the party include ANTHONY LEE, dancer; MR. JOSEPH, clown; REGO WASH, and ROYAL NESBITT. They go to Evergreen Island where Woodford has a lodge. There Julia meets TOM PAYSON, cunning sneaky Woodford, Nash and Nesbitt go hunting and Nesbitt is injured. The party leaves immediately to get him to a doctor.

Julia gets a job singing on TONY LATTAS' gambling ship. She sees Payson frequently. Woodford telephones her and warns her to say nothing of what happened on the yacht. SMITH GARLAND, night club owner, offers Julia a job singing in a new club he is about to open. She takes the name of "VADINE WHITE," is cheered on the opening night.

Julia hears a girl saying that Payson is backing the night club. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XX

AT Julia's direct question, Smith Garland's pleased expression was replaced with one of poor hidden astonishment. Then he shrugged away his embarrassment.

"What difference does it make who put up the money for the White Club? It's a success now—and you're a success with it."

"Tom Payson backed you, didn't he?" Garland nodded sheepishly. "But I don't see what difference it makes."

"It does make a difference," Julia told him quickly. "But why?"

She sat down weakly. "I suppose I was being a fool. But I felt I'd been helping you put something over."

"But you have, Nadine. You've done just that." Julia shook her head. "No..."

She answered, "All this was just a whim of Tom's. It wasn't what I thought, at all. I was fool enough to think that you got the idea, and saw me, and—and worked it all out."

"Look here, Julia..." He strode across the room to her chair, knelt down before her as though she were a child. "It was my idea. And it came to me when I saw you all dressed in white on Latta's gambling ship. Of course, Tom steered me to you—naturally I thought of him when the question of finances came up. I couldn't swing it alone, but I'll pay Tom back in time. He knows that."

the door behind him. "Of course I should have knocked." Garland rose to his feet, reddened furiously. "It's quite all right, Tom. I was just trying to explain things to Julia."

"So I see." "She's found out that you backed the club."

Payson's jaw dropped and his eyes searched Julia's face. "Who told you that?"

"I happened to overhear it," she told him quietly. "Some of your friends at one of the tables out there."

Tom Payson grinned amiably. "I'd like to know how they found it out. I was hoping to keep it a secret."

But his casualness failed to impress Julia; and Garland, his face still crimson, blurted out that he had to get out on the floor "to see how things are going." When the door closed behind him, Payson turned to Julia.

"I gather that Garland was making love to you." She did not answer, and he went on: "Are you in love with him, Julia?"

"No..."

He was silent a moment, then walked over and took her hand, drew Julia to her feet. "Was so sad, darling? Why—why this ought to be the happiest night in your life!"

"It was," Julia said, "until I walked by that table."

"What do you care what people say?" "It does make a difference," Julia told him quickly.

"But why?" She sat down weakly. "I suppose I was being a fool. But I felt I'd been helping you put something over."

"But you have, Nadine. You've done just that." Julia shook her head. "No..."

She answered, "All this was just a whim of Tom's. It wasn't what I thought, at all. I was fool enough to think that you got the idea, and saw me, and—and worked it all out."

"Look here, Julia..." He strode across the room to her chair, knelt down before her as though she were a child. "It was my idea. And it came to me when I saw you all dressed in white on Latta's gambling ship. Of course, Tom steered me to you—naturally I thought of him when the question of finances came up. I couldn't swing it alone, but I'll pay Tom back in time. He knows that."

Julia smiled slowly, and when she spoke again it was with a wholly irrelevant question. "Did you know you called me Julia—instead of Nadine?"

He held her arm. "I'm going with you, then." "No," Julia said. "I'd rather you wouldn't..."

Outside she entered a taxi and was soon before the towering apartment which the White Club had made possible for her and Amy. As she entered the elevator she was startled to see Cintra Lee.

"Why... Cintra?" "I'm here for a reason," Cintra Lee said. "I want to know if you have any idea what happened to Royal Nesbitt."

Says Appetite Is Issue

Editor The Star: Alcohol as a beverage has been so thoroughly outlawed by human experience as to admit of no words of defense. No class of true American citizens is so densely stupid or so brazenly wicked as to encourage such an effort. Consequently the class of people whose business and habits would be outlawed by a moral perception and by a sense of social responsibility have been put to it for finding a means of approach or even an excuse for presenting a matter which the whole nation has confessed to be too wretched a business to trust. Of course they say enforcement is a failure; but their anxiety indicates that the gratification of their taste and running an illegitimate business has some embarrassment about it which they would like to escape.

The blunt denial of the efficiency of efficiency of enforcement is not convincing, besides it offers a rather irritating challenge to the self-respecting citizen. It has been necessary therefore to create a sort of tolerance for a so-called controlled liquor system. Hence the invention of the terms state control or dispensary. These are only a covering for shielding the life ruining and soul destroying consequences of drink. Under the guise of moral and patriotic passion we witness the strange spectacle of the brewer and the liquor interests conducting a nationwide crusade in the interest of America's youth and the overburdened taxpayers. It is a strange doctrine which says you have to make it easy to get, to keep them from getting any at all, and if it were in connection with anything else we would call it a piece of pathetic stupidity.

The truth is that prohibition represents a hundred years of education as to the effect of drink, and no denial can counteract the tragedy when alcohol ran riot in the land. No justification can possibly be given for defending a habit-forming beverage and particularly when its chief ingredient is an element whose one effect is to destroy every faculty of body and soul. The plea of the advocates is that a blessing is being denied to men, the most broken is not so foolhardy as that. It is personal liberty for which they clamor—usually the liberty of some one member to ignore the liberties of every one else. But take it at its face value and what right has any class of people to subject a whole country or state to harm for the gratification of a personal appetite. No right can be spoken for drink in any form for it contributes nothing and jeopardizes everything.

The experience of the whole world in its dealing with drink is that its one mission is to destroy and in destroying it must be your boy or girl who is crushed and ruined. It is passing strange that a traffic is so corrupt its advocates have to hide under a robe of another name. No worthy citizen will fall under the spell of the illusion proposed by this type of missionary. Alcohol is utterly inconsistent with every worthy standard of life and is so destructive of life itself as to allow no compromise on any terms. To the youth its enticements are as dangerous as the lure of the adder, and it is a cold-blooded proposition as to who will be master of the physical, economic and spiritual fortunes of future generations. One of the great questions of today relates to the great army of defectives and the greater army of the socially unfit who count in the national census but no where else. There would be very much less eugenic agitation and talk of sterilizing the unfit if it had not been for alcohol.

The admission of the alcoholic beverages for revenue or any other cause would be indefensible as a piece of public policy and would violate the highest interests of moral and Christian civilization. The liquor question is not a trifling incident but rather a contest between greed and appetite on one side, and the inalienable rights of the boys and girls of America on the other. Better take time to analyze the philanthropy back of all this liquor propaganda. Do you ever know one of them to teach Christian morals to the youth or lead a prayer service? After all it is the people who form the ideals of a country. What do you want these ideals to be, a liquor drinking people or do you want that sense of honor that loyalty to principle, that appreciation of the finer things of life that cannot come through the liquor trail?

Sunshine Still
When life is hard to understand,
Then turn to things quite close at hand.
The homely things, the humble task,
These will not fail the peace you ask.
Forgetting moods of gloom and ill,
Your life will gain some sunshine still.
And as you seek, so you will find
The roadway smooth, the guidance kind.
Not only from the world without
Comes joy, but through a courage stout.
Brave hearts have bliss no blight can kill
And through the years some sunshine still.
Then leave behind the dread, the doubt,
And shut the questioning fear with-out.
Meet each today in valiant mood
And welcome only what is good.
Triumph at last your cup will fill
And you will gain all sunshine still.

Texarkana Singers at Nazarene Meet

Rev. and Mrs. Harold Johnson Will Be Guests Thursday Night

The Rev. Harold C. Johnson, radio evangelist of KCMC Texarkana, and his wife will be guest singers at the revival at the Church of the Nazarene Thursday night.

They will render several instrumental and vocal numbers during the service.

The evangelist, Rev. C. A. Calhoun, has announced his subject will be "Conquering Faith." He says in part, "New Christian faith leads us back and binds us to the infinite, absolute and immutable being—God."

It carries us into the future conquering and to conquer. Does not that give solidity to our lives? Why are so many people so discontented and unstable? The reason is easy to see.

It lies right out on the surface. They put their trust in finite and mutable things. Thus they are driven by the wind and tossed. Every pleasure soon palls on their senses."

The crowds are increasing, interest is growing. You are invited to come. Remember, he who climbs on the band wagon last adds least to the music.

WITH THE LADIES

Do women really talk more than men? Consider the case of Mrs. Hattie Caraway, the only woman ever to be elected to the United States Senate.

For five years Mrs. Caraway has ruled the only touch of feminine intuition to that august body. Yet only a few days ago she arose and made her first speech in the senior chamber! Taxes, bonuses, investigations on one thing and another have come and gone. She has been silent. The senator from Arkansas, first appointed to fill out her late husband's unexpired term, and then elected for a full term of her own, let the men have the floor.

Then, how have women gained the reputation of having tongues that wiggle at both ends, of phrasing words and saying nothing, the gentlemen of the jury ask?

Chances to Talk Are Limited
It is quite simple, my dear sirs! The majority of women remain at home most of the day. When they talk, it is to their children who have just come in from school; the neighbors, or the huckster, the laundry man, and the butcher's boy.

All day long they store up the things they want to say. When it is six o'clock, the lamps are lighted their frocks are changed and their noses powdered, and their husbands come to dinner, they are in a conversational mood. The day has been a preparation for it. They want to talk!

Men, on the other hand, having used words as freely as an auctioneer at a fire sale, have exhausted their voices and consequent formations. They want some peace. They are not in the question and answer mood. When their wives begin to recount the day's inconsequentialities, they shudder behind their newspapers and wish that women knew when to keep still.

You can't ensure them. A load of trivialities, rendered at one rehearsal, is too much for any man. However, it would ease the burden if men distributed their own unimportant remarks among a couple of dozen people at various times that day.

Silence Is Re'ief From Day's Bustle

Occasionally it is stated that men and women, both of whom have one side interests, experience more harmony and graciousness in living than those where the woman has few extraneous contacts. If this is so, it may be due to the fact that they both, husband and wife, want an hour or two of peace when they first meet at dinner-time.

Occasionally people wonder how a dynamic man finds such pleasure in a wife who is the superlative in quietude. Perhaps, it is because she is a comfortable sounding board, a nice relief from the sharpness of the day's staccato voices. It's a wise woman who knows when it is best to keep still.

No, woman do not talk more than men. Society, being organized as it is, however, perhaps women should talk less than they do.

Wise Woman Knows When to Talk
A scriptural injunction, in keeping with the custom and usage of the first century, suggests that women should keep silent in church. The application is evident. Even then women were considered the garrulous sex.

Being quiet, but intelligent enough to talk sensibly, and being quiet because of stupidity which makes it better to keep one's mouth closed, are two different things.

The wise woman will know how to talk. Even more than that, she will know when!

Chicago Cubs' Pennant Drive Greatest in League's History

But the Memory of 1914 Boston Braves Still Linger—From Cellar to Pennant in Last Two Months!

(This is the fifth of six stories on Sixty Years of National League Baseball.)

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service

NEW YORK—The National League's 60th birthday marks a milestone and recognizes an unending sequence, for when the circuit is twice 60 years old the 60th year, 1935, will stand out brightly in the pages of the history then being written as the season the Chicago Cubs won 21 straight games in their dash to the pennant.

Cap Anson's Chicago White Stockings bugged 21 straight and the National League flag in 1895. The Boston Braves came from last place in two and a half months to take it all in 1914. The New York Giants of 1916 capped 26 in a row, which still stands as the major league record, yet finished no better than fourth.

But the Cubs of 1935 performed an exploit that is distinctive from all these bygone heroes. Starting in third place September 4, the men of Charley Grimm bowled over all opposition except Cincinnati in their drive to the championship.

Their victory wave did not waver until they met and conquered their only remaining rival for the bunting, the world champion Cardinals at Sportman's Park, St. Louis, in the last half week of the schedule.

Their 20th consecutive triumph clinched the gonfalon. Their 21st tied the 1880 record of Anson's Chicago feat made the senior wheel's 60th year one never to be forgotten by the torian of great diamond deeds. It was the most rousing pennant-winning streak of straight victories ever turned in by a major league array.

Enthusiastic Heroes
As phenomenal as it was the Bruins' performance will not linger in memory like that of the incredible Boston Braves of 1914.

George Stallings popularized the term Marital Man in the national pastime for the first time when three masterful pitchers, Dick Rudolph, Bill James, and George Tyler, enabled the Braves to flash across the baseball sky with unprecedented sensationalism to make their names live down through the years as a lesson to teach that what can't be done can be done.

The Braves' achievement survived because they came from last place. The world loves to see the underdog strike back. Tailenders as late as July 19—think of it!—the Braves were world champions two and a half months later.

Rabbit Maranville's droll figure is to stalk National League campuses 22 years later to link today's tale with those fantastic heroics of Stallings' team, which bagged 61 victories against 16 defeats in the second half of the campaign, and then took four straight in the world series from Connie Mack's most formidable array of Philadelphia Athletics.

There have been fewer long winning streaks in baseball than one would imagine.

Cincinnati was the birth place of professional baseball in 1869, when the Red Stockings toured the country, playing 69 games without a reverse.

George Wright, the oldest living ball player, was one of their stars. Wright was the most famous shortstop in the early days of the dodge. He managed the Providence Grays, who grabbed the National League pennant in 1879 and 1884, with Old Hos Ruddbourne the outstanding luminary.

The Giants copied 18 in a row in 1904. It was an eccentric band of

Plans Made for Nevada Tourney

Willisville Is Selected as Place for Basketball Tournament

PRESCOTT—The Nevada County Athletic Association met February 1, 1936, at 2:30 p. m. at the courthouse. Gleanings from the minutes of this meeting follow:

It was voted to hold the tournament at Willisville, February 23 and 24, and on the same terms as last year. All junior games will be played on the 23rd, and if necessary, to prevent overwork on the 24th, some of the senior games will be played on the 28th.

The officials elected were: Herbert Garrett, Emmet and L. J. Bryson, Willard, callers; Charles Reynerson, timekeeper; Tom McCroskie, scorekeeper.

Prizes this year will be awarded to both senior and junior winners. The balance of the proceeds, after all expenses are paid, will be divided among the schools in the same ratio as their team representation in the tournament. That is, a school having four teams will receive four shares, a school having three teams will receive three shares each.

The following committees were appointed.

On trophies, J. B. Little, Emmet; W. H. Patterson, Willisville; and Calvin Jacques, Central.

On brackets and team spotting: I. W. McAllard, Central; H. L. Hamilton, Boughton; and Herbert Garrett, Emmet.

President L. B. Kennedy instructed that all schools send to Mr. McAllard, before February 15th, a complete list of their teams and players.

Cotton Exchange Hits Pool Plan

Strikes at Government-Control Agency to Dispose of Cotton

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—The Memphis Cotton Exchange Wednesday criticized establishment of a government-controlled agency for disposing of cotton in loan pools and proposed instead that 12-cent loan pool cotton of 1935 be resold to original producers without carrying charges, to be placed on the market.

The proposal was outlined by George J. Eckert, president of the exchange, who said the cotton trade disapproves of "government interference." The plan of Senator Smith of South Carolina for a centralized agency, cotton traders said, would depress the current market.

Would Avoid Conflict
"The idea of making extensions to growers to repurchase the cotton up to July 31," Eckert said, "will bring the cotton into the market during a period when it will not conflict with cotton in the hands of producers."

"The cotton will flow through natural channels of trade in an orderly manner and will not be a disturbing influence. It is the least expensive plan the government could adopt."

"It is a plan which could be put into operation immediately and will be approved by the producers, the establishing the accrued charges up to July 31, the government would not be giving anything away, for should it take the cotton over the charges would have to be paid in any event."

Eckert said the centralized agency "would be a most disturbing element for a long period of years."

Barney Dreyfuss entry, and went on to the first of four consecutive pennants, a stunt that has never been equaled.

Fiery Frank Frisch was the key man of those New York clubs. The old Fordham Flash has since been the spark of the Cardinals.

Hustlers like Frisch are always behind the brilliant winning streaks and pennant drives which have been a major contribution to a glorious National League tradition.

Prescott News in Brief

William J. Vick, commander of the local Legion Post, stated that to date he had assisted some sixty veterans in filing their application for the bonus payment. Mr. Vick said that there are some 400 veterans in this county and that the Legion will assist any of these in filing their applications without charge. The applications are being filed with Commander Vick in the National Guard Armory in the Scott building. He asks that those desiring his assistance see him within the next few days so that the filing of the applications may be finished as soon as possible.

Nevada county farm women did not let the green grass grow in their 1935 gardens or under their feet. If the country store can be taken as a measure, Miss Katherine Heath, home demonstration agent, a food production and preservation program, based on the actual food needs of the family was followed closely by many farm women.

The home demonstration club women of Nevada county canned 116,475 quarts of fruits, vegetables and meats; 12,136 pints of preserves; 19,843 pints of pickles and 10,655 glasses of jelly last year. The thirteen F. H. R. A. canning kitchens for the use of resettlement people canned 90,000 quarts.

Canning budgets to meet the food needs of their families were used as a guide throughout the year. There was an increase in the canning of a wider variety of vegetables, fruits and fruit juices, and a decrease in pickles and concentrated sweets, such as preserves and jellies, showing that farm homemakers are filling their jars with the foods most needed for well-balanced, appetizing meals, Miss Heath points out.

More than 150 men and women attended the farmers' meeting held at the courthouse Tuesday, February 4. This meeting was for the purpose of discussing the farm outlook for Nevada county for 1936.

The Nevada county farm women did not let grass grow in their gardens in 1935 but raised much food, which they have canned on order to reduce the food cost.

William J. Vick, commander of the local Legion post, said at present date he had assisted about 60 veterans in filing the applications for the bonus payment. Mr. Vick said there are about 400 veterans in this county.

New Deal to Sell Cotton Holdings

Legislation Started in Congress to Sell 6,000,000 Bales

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Legislation to dispose of the government's cotton holdings of 6,000,000 bales of cotton started through congress Monday.

Chairman Smith (D-S.C.) of the senate agriculture committee, introduced a measure to create a board of three to hold weekly sales of cotton in the first week of June.

The bill, somewhat changed from an original draft, would limit the sale of 25,000 bales a week with a minimum sales quota of 20,000 bales.

However, during September, October and November, peak months for movement of the new crop, sales could be suspended by the board.

Smith said his committee would meet Tuesday to consider the proposed plan for liquidating government cotton obtained through 12-cent loans on lint and through a producers pool.

At the beginning of each week the cotton sales board would announce its sales allotment for that week and the cotton would be sold to the five highest bidders.

None of whom could purchase more than 20 per cent of the allotment.

It was estimated nearly six years would be required to dispose of the holdings.

Smith predicted his plan would have no undue effect upon the price or consumption, pointing out growers and the trade would have knowledge of the amount to be disposed of within one short week.

As originally proposed, the Smith weekly sales policy plan limited the weekly sales allotment to 20,000 bales and sale of the cotton would have been placed in the hands of one man who would have been designated sales agent by the president.

Says Nation in Need More Flyers

McSwain Urges Force of 3,000 Well-Trained Pilots

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The United States was said Tuesday by Chairman McSwain of the House Military Committee to be "short on flying personnel necessary to meet a major emergency."

In a statement put in the Congressional Record, McSwain urged a force of at least 3,000 young and well-trained pilots in both the regular army and in the reserve.

He added: "While it is true the country is short on aircraft for the army and navy and more especially short on aircraft for the training of the organized air service and for the National Guard, yet we are also short on flying personnel necessary to meet a major emergency."

"All Arkansas" to Eat With Roosevelt

Will Climax Visit of President to the State Centennial

LITTLE ROCK—All Arkansas is going to sit down to supper with the President of the United States. That, in effect, is the essence of a unique plan announced Wednesday by Arvey C. Couch, chairman of the Arkansas Centennial Commission, as it climaxes the visit of President Franklin D. Roosevelt to the state during the first week of June.

From every nook and corner of the state, men and women of all walks of life, representing every township, will come to Little Rock the night of the President's appearance at Centennial guests at supper with the nation's chief executive in commemoration of 60 years of statehood.

Members of the legislature and newspaper editors will be asked by the Commission to assist in the selection of men and women to represent the townships.

Legislators, state officials, county officers and other leaders of industry, social and political life of the state will mingle with the guests of honor at the group luncheon given with the President, thousands of spectators will view the mammoth supper banquet from seats in the giant grandstand.

Experts Meet to Study Oil Embargo

Britain, France and Russia Send Representatives to Geneva Conference

GENEVA—(AP)—A committee of 12 experts met Monday to determine how to handle the oil embargo against Italy, which would be an effective punishment for her war on Ethiopia.

The delegates comprising the 12 experts included representatives from Great Britain, France and Russia.

Japanese Accused

MOSCOW—(AP)—A high command of the Soviet for eastern army accused Japanese and Manchukuo troops in a communique Monday, of taking up positions facing the Soviet border and sending scouts into Soviet territory.

The scouts were compelled to retire back to the Japanese-occupied state of Manchukuo under fire of Soviet frontier guards, leaving one of their members dead, the communique said.

Are you going to vote for the bootlegger...for the racketeer... for organized crime?

OR ARE YOU GOING TO VOTE FOR TEMPERANCE AND RESPECT FOR LAW?

That is the real question which all of us must answer on February 18th! We are sensible people... let's face the facts sensibly. There are two roads open to us!

WE CAN VOTE THE WAY THE BOOTLEGGER WANTS US TO VOTE!

We can promise the bootlegger that we will play ball with him... that we won't interfere with his vast criminal liquor business. That's what we have done during Prohibition... we have watched millions of our dollars support our criminal element in luxury... while we ourselves struggle to pay taxes for legitimate purposes. We can say to the bootlegger... "Here are our children; you educate them into disrespect for law. We can't stop you, so you might as well continue serving them your poisonous drinks... they are at an age when it is smart to break the law, when it is an adventure to drink in secret." And the bootlegger will be delighted because here are new customers... new dollars to finance his traffic... new dollars with which to corrupt those who stand in his way. The bootlegger will be very happy indeed if you will vote for him!

OR, WE CAN VOTE TRUE TEMPERANCE AND LAW AND ORDER!

We can uphold the package-liquor store law. It will do what the prohibitionists do not pretend they can do—keep the bootlegger out of business! A vote for the package-liquor store will put thousands of dollars in taxes from legal liquors to work for the good of our state... dollars that will cover the cost of enforcing the liquor regulations and will relieve the land of the tax burden built up under prohibition... And it will mean that drinking will be kept out in the open where it can be controlled by the force of public opinion... where education for true temperance can be effective! Let's protect our children against the example of lawlessness by their elders! Let's uphold law and order. Vote for the package store law. Keep the bootlegger OUT... KEEP LAW AND ORDER IN!

Cards Line Up 6 New Base Swipers

1936 Gas-House Gang
May Be Fastest in National League

ST. LOUIS—(P)—National league catchers may find they have fallen among thieves when they meet the 1936 model gas-house gang of St. Louis.

To accompany the base-stealing genius of the veteran Pepper Martin—second among National league bag pilferers last season and first the two years before—the Cardinals have added six rookies whose talents run to larceny on the base paths.

The six averaged 44 stolen bases per man last summer.

Lytle Jody who stole 107 for Springfield, Mo., in the Western association, to break the world record last season, had considerable to do with the high average, but all the rookies finished near the top in their respective leagues.

Next to Jody comes Lynn King, Houston outfielder who swiped 25 steals to equal the Texas league record.

Pat Onkenman, shortstop from Columbus, O., was third among American association "thieves" with 21 stolen bases, and 27 steals by Stuart Martin, Asheville outfielder, earned him fourth place in the Piedmont league.

Louis Scofield and Eddie Morgan are co-base-stealing pair from Blooming ton, Ill., of the Three-I league. Morgan grabbed 30 bases to take second place in the league and Scofield was third with 23.

The newcomers will be shooting at Pepper Martin's place of supremacy among Cardinal base stealers, but Pepper has demonstrated his ability to lead fast company. He picked off 20 bases last season, 23 the season before and 26 in 1933.

Dream Ship Visioned for Express Service Between U. S. and Europe

Fast as a speedboat, a quarter of a mile long, accommodating 7,000 passengers, capable of making the round-trip to Europe in a week—these are specifications for the superliner shown above in an artist's drawing made from the plans now being studied by the U. S. Department of Commerce. Representing the combined experience of marine, automotive, aviation and naval designers, it was designed primarily to be a self-supporting naval vessel, which, in time of war, would be used as transport and airplane carrier. An airplane landing area 150 by 1250 feet is provided on the clean top deck. Such a ship would be by far the largest afloat and, completely streamlined, would be capable of nearly 50-miles-an-hour speed. It could operate on a $60 fare. That rate, however, would not include meals as is customary on present-day liners. Low price cafeterias and restaurants would be provided to suit passengers' purses.

Grange May Be Cornell Coach

Tulane Football Mentor
Goes to Oklahoma
A. & M. College

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—(P)—The Binghamton Press in a copyright article Wednesday said it had learned "on good authority, that Harold (Red) Grange, former Illinois University and Chicago Bears pro halfback, will be head football coach at Cornell University this fall.

Cox to Oklahoma
STILLWATER, Okla.—(P)—Ted Cox, who assembled football juggernauts at Tulane University for nine years, was placed Wednesday in command of Oklahoma A. and M. College's football destiny.

Although the athletic council, which named Cox to succeed Albert Exendine as head football coach, must obtain final approval from the state board of agriculture, that approval was inferred when the board met Tuesday at Oklahoma City.

Henry Iba, Aggie director of athletics, who announced Cox's selection, said the former Tulane coach had been given a three-year contract. Terms of the contract were not announced.

The salary is agreeable, Iba said, to both the new coach and the board. Iba said Cox would name his own assistants.

Present Plan for Housing Program

Legislation for Construction to Be Sought in Congress

Copyright by Associated Press
WASHINGTON—Advisors studying the housing problem for President Roosevelt decided Wednesday to recommend a nation-wide, low-cost program based on cheap federal loans to local communities.

Their decision, climaxing months of study, will be presented to the White House soon, in the expectation that enabling legislation will be sought at this session of congress.

The new undertaking would contemplate:
1. A long-range building program.
2. Interest rates perhaps as low as one per cent on federal loans.
3. Construction of facilities for as many as 1,000,000 families.

Councils Authorizations
The new program was disclosed only a day after President Roosevelt had taken inventory and announced that as much as $1,000,000,000 in authorized funds for the Home Owners Loan Corporation could be erased.

The move to cancel this authorization was viewed as the first concrete indication that the administration plans to limit its direct lending activities in the mortgage field and shift more of the responsibility to local communities.

Under the new program, interest rates on money advanced by the government would be so low as to constitute a subsidy encouraging housing projects by local communities.

Full control of management and condemnation proceedings would be lodged with local officials under the plan, the aim being to decentralize activities from Washington.

The declaration pledges that the telephone will not be used for transmission of forbidden conversations, by either the subscriber or anyone else.

Forbidden conversations are those directed against the state, religion or morals, and against public, personal or economic security.

In addition, so-called cursing at or arguing with the telephone operators are banned.

Many subscribers are refusing to sign.

PARAGOULD, Ark.—(P)—The department of justice notified Paragould Authorities Thursday that Frank Barfield was wanted at Houston, Texas, for armed robbery and assault to murder.

Admits Many Crimes
PARAGOULD, Ark.—(P)—Police chief Henry Brown said Wednesday that he would surrender Frank Marshall (Pumpkin Jack) Barfield to the "ficer who has the most serious charge against him.

Brown said that Barfield admitted participating in a series of crimes in Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma. Sheriff T. R. Hughes, Shreveport, La., and Sheriff W. H. Hayes, Longview, Texas, both announced they would seek custody of the man.

The prisoner indicated he had less objection to returning to Louisiana than to Texas, Brown said. The officer said that Barfield told him many details of alleged crimes but was uncertain as to the exact dates.

Must Have Poll Tax to Hold Jobs

Dallas Concerns Adopt
Plan to Encourage Balloting

DALLAS, Texas.—(P)—No poll tax to work—
This edict was in force Wednesday night at a number of Dallas business and industrial centers, while many others have vigorously encouraged their politically-inert employees to become potential voters.

A determined resolve to combat sales tax legislation stood out as the purpose of this movement, aside from the fundamental principle of good citizenship.

"There is no question about the purpose of these companies being to build up resistance to sales taxes," said Ed Cobb, Dallas county tax collector.

"Practically every department store, chain store, public utility, railroad and packing company operating in Dallas as well as most of the factories has urged its employees to pay poll tax and a number have made it mandatory.

"One department store head told me he intended to dispense with the service of any employee not complying, even if it was the president of the firm."

The result has been a sharp increase in poll tax collections at Cobb's office this year. He cited the fact that this is a presidential election year and other reasons as contributory to the increase but believes the boost was largely due to firms insisting on employees becoming eligible to vote.

"No poll tax; no work," read the notice posted by one manufacturer, employing 40 persons, on the factory time clock.

Hoffman Is Ousted

tive's reprieve of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's execution and renouncing of the Lindbergh kidnapping inquiry precipitated the revolt. The committee's program assures passage of the bill stripping Hoffman of power to remove Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police.

Impeachment of the governor, a suggestion which has been rife for weeks, was not mentioned in the committee's resolution, made public by Henry W. Jeffers Sr., state chairman. Nor was there direct mention of the Hauptmann-Lindbergh controversy. But members of the committee frankly acknowledged the rebellion had its basis in discontent over the situation involving the century's most atrocious crime.

The governor said that should Hauptmann go to the chair, from which he was saved three weeks ago by a 36-day reprieve, he would direct the police to continue their search for accomplices.

The governor said he still had no intention of granting Hauptmann another reprieve at the expiration of the present one on February 15. If no reprieve is granted, Hauptmann will die sometime between March 16 and April 11.

No More Reprieves Slayer,
Says Hoffman
TRENTON, N. J.—(P)—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman indicated Wednesday the new police investigation of the Lindbergh kidnap-murder case would not interfere with the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

The governor said that should Hauptmann go to the chair, from which he was saved three weeks ago by a 36-day reprieve, he would direct the police to continue their search for accomplices.

The governor said he still had no intention of granting Hauptmann another reprieve at the expiration of the present one on February 15. If no reprieve is granted, Hauptmann will die sometime between March 16 and April 11.

Sheriff Asks for Aid
Sheriff Ralph Gear issued a request for National Guard aid—the first direct call for help the local authorities had made since the general strike started. But there was no indication when the five companies of militiamen at Peoria, seven miles away, would move on the city.

No apparent attempt was made to halt the roving bands of strikers which swept through the business district to order the doors closed. Two women were arrested, but they were released after apologizing to the tradesmen they had allegedly intimidated with threats to "blow up" their places.

$15 Pension Bill Voted in Kentucky

FRANKFORD, Ky.—(P)—A $15-a-month old age pension bill was passed today by the House of Representatives after a parliamentary move forestalled consideration of an amendment to increase the figure to $30. The bill now goes to the Senate, which will consider it next week.

One-half of the amount to be paid to recipients would be furnished by the state and the balance by the federal government, with the entire cost constituting a lien, in favor of the state on estates of recipients.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBE

Medical authorities agree that kidneys contain 15 MILES of tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scant amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tube may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of missing backache, leg pains, loss of energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. LUCKIES ARE LESS ACID

Luckies are less acid

Recent chemical tests show that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

*RESULTS VERIFIED BY INDEPENDENT CHEMICAL LABORATORIES AND RESEARCH GROUPS

All kinds of people choose Luckies, each for reasons of his own. But everyone agrees that Luckies are A Light Smoke of rich, ripe-bodied tobacco. It is a rather surprising fact that the leaves of the same tobacco plant may vary for more than the leaves from plants of quite different types. Chemical analysis shows that the top leaves contain excess alkalies which tend to give a harsh, alkaline taste. The bottom leaves tend to acidity in the smoke. It is only the center leaves which approach in Nature the most palatable, acid-alkaline balance. In Lucky Strike Cigarettes, the center leaves are used.
